Hello my name is Tamara Leach!

I am what they call a Cheese Head, born and raised in Wisconsin. I love the land, but the name just didn't work for me so I moved to South Dakota in 1995 in pursuit of becoming a massage therapist. After my graduation I began apprentice teaching at the massage school I attended and found a passion for teaching. Deciding that South Dakota just doesn't work for a tree loving, outdoors kind of girl like me, I moved to Montana in 2000.

I have been practicing massage since 1996 and over the years was drawn to the information under my hands for which there was no language. The physical information was strewn everywhere but the subtle way that the body talks was not. The McKay Method was my introduction to a language for the energetic aspect of the body. Beautiful! Over the past few years, I have been blending the techniques together to meet my clients' needs. My passion is working with clients on as many levels of their being as they are ready to work with, be it physical, emotional or mental, and spiritual. I take this into my passion for teaching as well, working with students wherever they are in their evolution!

Besides working with the human race, in my spare time I love to hang with my dogs, Root and Maggie and my husband Chet and our beautiful daughter, Anna Rose. We enjoy hiking, fishing, gardening (part of the reason Root has his name), traveling, camping, reading and just relaxing!

I provide combined massage and energy sessions as well as solo of either modality.

My rate is $1 a minute for in person or distance sessions. Please inquire about discounts for students or multi session packages.

Hope to see and work with you soon!
